DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-10, drawn to an automated method for analyzing substances, classified in class 435, subclass 4.
 - II. Claims 11-18, drawn to a test apparatus, classified in class 422, subclass 63.
 - III. Claims 19-21, drawn to a replaceable cartridge with a printhead, classified in class 422, subclass 100.
 - IV. Claims 22-24, drawn to a replaceable cartridge with a memory storage device, classified in class 435, subclass 287.1.
 - V. Claims 25-26, drawn to a method for performing arrayed analysis on a biological material, classified in class 436, subclass 55.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

2. Inventions of Group I and Group V are unrelated and independent inventions. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions as claimed have different method steps that have different functions and different effects. The method step of activating a test apparatus of Group I is not required by the claims of Group V. The method step of interpreting the captured data and altering dispensation of the active material in an iterative manner of Group V is not required by the claims of Group I.

3. Inventions of Groups II, III, and IV are unrelated and independent inventions. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions as claimed have different required components that have different functions and different effects. The feature of a test surface of Group II is not required by the claims of Group III-IV. The feature of a printhead of Group III is not required by the claims of Groups II and IV. The feature of a memory storage device of Group IV is not required by the claims of Group II-III.

4. Inventions of Group I (process) and Group II (apparatus) are related as process and apparatus for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process such as the method of cell sorting or Group V. This restriction requirement is also applicable with the apparatus of Groups III and IV.

5. Inventions of Group V (process) and Group II (apparatus) are related as process and apparatus for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process such as the method of Group I. This restriction requirement is also applicable with the apparatus of Groups III and IV.

6. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the searches required are not co-extensive thus requiring a burdensome search, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper. Additionally, different patentability considerations are involved for each group. For example, a patentability determination for Group III would involve a determination of the patentability of the combination of a container and a printhead (independent of its use) while a patentability determination for Group V would involve a consideration of the patentability of the method for performing arrayed analysis on a biological material. These considerations are very different in nature.

7. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
